Tracks In the Snow.

[Copyright, 1907, by G. D. Daniels.]

One morning in November while rabbit hunting near my father's farm I came on a man's tracks in the snow. The tracks had been made in the night and led to an old barn. It was plain that the party who had made them knew of the old barn and had it in mind when he left the highway.

I went into the barn. Presently I heard the snore of a sleeping man, and a minute later I found him covered up in the hay. His face was exposed, and I saw his sandy hair, and then I knew who it was. Six months previously our nearest neighbor on the west had enlisted and gone to the front in the civil war. He was not much thought of as a man, being considered shiftless and without ambition. It was the large bounty that had induced him to enlist. If the man had no standing in the community, his wife had. She was an energetic little woman, far too good for such a man, and was universally respected. She lived quite alone after his enlistment, and the full crop, such as it was, was gathered for her by the neighbors. They had also seen that she had a store of winter fuel. I uncovered the man without awakening him and found that he was sure enough Dan Scott. I was about to arouse him when it struck me as a curious thing that he should have come to the old barn instead of going to his own house. I covered him up again and left the place, and a quarter of an hour later was knocking on his door.

"Well, John, what is it?" asked the cheery little woman as I entered.

"How long since you have heard from Mr. Scott?" I queried in reply, hardly knowing how to get around to my subject.

"Why, I showed your mother the last letter. That was three weeks ago."

"Did he say anything about coming home?"

"Goodness, no! He couldn't get a furlough as soon as this if I was dying! Have you heard any news? Has there been another battle? Has Dan been killed?"

"Then I told her of my discovery. She turned pale and shut her lips and trembled a bit. Not a word did she reply until she had got on her things to go out. Then she said:

"Come, John. We are going to the barn."

Not a word was spoken between us on the way. We found the husband still asleep, and as she stood and surveyed him she flushed with anger. Then she gave him a smart kick, and he opened his eyes and sat up.

"I've come home, Jennie," he said.

"Yes?"

"I was so homesick to see you that I just had to come. I believe I should have died if I hadn't come."

"Then you got a furlough?" she asked in a hard, metallic voice, her blue eyes looking right through him.

"A—A sort of a furlough—that is, a good many of the boys were coming home. You see, it's got so late that there won't be any more battles this fall, and there was no use hanging around the camp. I hope you ain't mad about it, Jennie."

"You came away without leave, did you?"

"There were others too."

"To come away without leave makes you a deserter. You will be hunted down and taken back. The papers will say you deserted. We shall be disgraced. Not a decent person for ten miles around will speak to us."

"Oh, come, now," protested Scott as he reached his feet and brushed away at the hay clinging to him. "You see, you don't understand. I was homesick, and it was no use for me to stay there. It was midnight when I got along here, and so I didn't go to the house. Let's go, John. I'm hungry for breakfast."

Hello, Jennie! Glad to see you. Come over tonight, and I'll tell you some war stories. Why don't you kiss me, Jennie, and tell me you are glad to see me?"

Mrs. Scott was a gentle little woman, but her face grew as hard as steel. I saw her bite her lips until they were stained with blood. The look she gave the man was so full of contempt and disgust that he fairly writhed under it. She held him for a long minute and then reached out and took the shotgun away from me. I had been leaning up against a beam and saying never a word. She looked to see if the gun was loaded and then turned to her husband with:

"There is no house for deserters to go to. There is not a family in the state that would give one of them a breakfast. You cannot sit under the same roof with me. You are going back to the army."

"But, Jennie!"

"You are going now."

"Say, now, but you can't mean it?"

She stepped back and brought the gun to her shoulder, and on my life I believe she would have shot him dead in his tracks if he had not moved. He must have believed so, too, for after a few seconds he turned away and took his trail to the highway. We both stood and watched him, and he never looked back. Five minutes after he was out of sight the woman handed me back the gun and quietly said:

"John, keep this a secret for my sake."

"I will," I answered. And this is the first time it has been told to others. Both husband and wife are dead now. He went back to the army and in some way escaped the disgrace and punishment, and when he finally returned for good it was as a lieutenant and with an honorable record. I knew them both for years after, but never once was the sore subject even hinted at. It came and passed like a dream.

At the Spelling School.

By CAROLINE SPENCER.

Copyright, 1907, by Mary McKoon.

Burt Seymour, son of Farmer Seymour, had given a "sugaring off" party in the sap bush, and his invited guests numbered a dozen of the young men and girls of the neighborhood. Such parties are always given with the last run of maple sap and are simple affairs. The guests all gathered at the sugar bush, where the sweet sap has already been boiled down to thick sirup, and seat themselves on a log while the sirup is boiled a little more and then served around on clean maple chips. There is snow yet left in the woods, and a dab of sirup dropped on the snow produces maple wax. There is a general stickiness, a general state of hilarity, and the girls go home with wet feet and the young men with wax on their chins.

In one sense this party referred to was a great success. In another it was a calamity. A sewing machine agent had been stopping at Farmer Haldy's for the last two weeks while he beat up the country. He happened to be a young man and a talking fellow, but there was no earthly reason for Burt Seymour to be jealous of him. Eunice Haldy and Burt had been engaged for three or four months, and while she was naturally flattered at the compliments paid to her by the agent, whose name was French, they didn't turn her head by any means. She saw from the first that Burt was inclined to be jealous, and she was therefore more circumspect, but Burt's jealousy still rankled. He took good care that the stranger shouldn't be invited to the sugar party, to which Eunice was duly escorted by the host, but cheek is a part of the stock in trade of agents of all sorts, and no one was greatly surprised when Mr. French showed up as cool as a snow bank and took the biggest chip in the collection.

As old Aunt Martha used to say, all girls that amount to anything have a spice of devilry in their nature. Be they ever so sweet and nice, there are times when they like to hector. When Eunice saw, with all the others, that the coming of the agent annoyed her lover and that Mr. French was inclined to put himself out in another way, she decided to make things a success, she came as near flirting with him as she could and miss it. The harder Burt scowled and the more he showed his vexation the more reckless she became. She didn't intend to go too far, but just far enough to punish him. He would be sullen and sulky going home, but she would make up with him before they reached the gate—that is, she thought it would be that way, but she was mistaken. Burt referred to the agent as a "sneak," a "squint" and several other things, and, although she only defended mildly, it was sufficient to keep his temper hot. He announced that he had been disappointed in her; that there was no such thing as loyalty known to her sex; that a few compliments from a "snasher" were valued by her more than his enduring love, and when the gate was reached she announced that she wouldn't submit to be browbeaten, and he flourished his arm in reply and exclaimed:

"Farewell, false girl! I have loved you as no man ever loved before, but you have let a fool part of me. I may be sunstroke this summer or die of a broken heart or commit suicide, but it will not matter to you. You will have simply broken one more human heart—shattered the faith of another man in woman's integrity."

Of course Eunice went into the house prepared to brave it out, and of course it wasn't fifteen minutes before her mother suspected that something had transpired and whisked her into the family bedroom to say:

"Now, then, has that Hattie Jones been saying mean things about you again?"

"No, ma," replied the daughter as she burst into sobs.

By and by all the details were in the mother's possession. The girl did not deny that she had flirted a bit, but she had not really meant anything serious. She was deeply in love with Burt Seymour, and as she thought of his dying of sunstroke and going to his grave believing she cared for any other man, no matter how many sewing machines he could sell in a week, it almost broke her heart.

"Well, now, stop crying while I talk to you," said the mother. "You should not have flirted, and Burt should not have made a fool of himself. He's gone away to chew the rag, as your cousin Ben puts it. He thinks he'll get a letter from you in a day or two asking his forgiveness. Then he'll take a week before coming around and confessing to make up."

Second and hindmost, he's got to come to you if there is any coming about it. Your father was just another such idiot when he was running after me, and I made him crawl. That's why I have always had the whip hand of him."

"But you know how set Burt is in his ways," pleaded Eunice.

"But you can be just as set in yours."

"But suppose he's found dead with my photo on his broken heart?"

"Suppose our old dog should bark his tail off? You are going to do just as I say, and that ends it. I'm your mother, and I know something about men, and if I don't help you to bring that smart young man back within two weeks I'll never darn another pair of socks for your father."

One event invariably follows the other in the country. After the sugar party, about two weeks after, comes the last day of the district school, or the close of the term. Word goes out for ten miles around, and the 200 young and old who attend manage somehow to get into the schoolhouse. Then two persons choose sides, and the whole crowd lines up, and the schoolmaster pronounces the words. The spelling school for the Seymour district was announced for a date two weeks subsequent to the sugar party and the lovers' quarrel. No Burt called at the Haldy farmhouse to make up. The days passed, and poor Eunice went about with tears in her eyes. Even her father noticed that the daughter was looking red eyed and pale faced and asked the wife if a doctor had not better be consulted.

"Don't you worry, Joseph," was all the reply he got, and about all he expected, but to the daughter the mother said:

"Eunice, when the spelling school comes off I am going to bring that young man to the mark. He is one of the best spellers around here, isn't he?"

"Yes, ma."

"Well, so are you. Some folks say you are better than he is. If you are on one side and he on the other, you are going to beat him."

"But suppose I can't?"

"I'm just going to pray that you will."

"Then he'll be madder yet. Maybe he'll go right home and commit suicide."

"And maybe he'll go right home and get some sense in his head. I'm running this school, and I want you to do just as I tell you."

There was the usual big turnout when the evening came. The sewing machine agent had departed for other fields, and Eunice arrived at the schoolhouse in the company of her father and mother. Almost immediately she heard that Burt Seymour had come alone with his horse and buggy. She also heard that their misunderstanding was being gossiped about. The schoolmaster was well known to the Haldys, and a few whispered words from Mrs. Haldy perfected her plans. It was announced that Mr. Burt Seymour and Miss Eunice Haldy would choose sides, and they found themselves at once the center of interest. Each sought to decline, but each was pushed forward. Each line when filled numbered eighty, and then the spelling began. The first five minutes did the business for twenty.

In a quarter of an hour there were only ten spellers on their feet. Five minutes later Eunice and Burt alone were left. They stood facing each other, though not looking into each other's eyes. Burt looked obstinate, and the girl had her chin in the air. It was called the greatest contest of the decade. For twenty minutes the teacher hunted out the hard words, but each was pushed forward. ## PROFESSOR OSLER ON DIET.

Comparing the human body and the steam engine in a lecture at the Workmen's college, Professor Osler said one differentiating feature was that, while the engine had only one furnace, and a large one, the human body consisted of myriads of little furnaces—that is, cells. Milk was the original food of man. It contained the four things that were necessary as food—fat, curd, sugar and salt—all dissolved in water. Dr. Weir Mitchell once showed him a robust looking patient, and he remarked, "He looks as if he had been living on the fat of the land."

"No," replied Dr. Mitchell; "on the fat of the cow." That patient had a five years' milk diet, except on Sundays, when his wife insisted on rice pudding. If vegetarians would eat their vegetables and say less about it, they would do well. Many vegetarians were not as robust mentally as physically.

Alcohol was quite unnecessary. If all the beer and spirits could be dumped into the Irish channel, the English channel and the North sea for a year, people in England would be infinitely better off. "If," he continued, "on the second day you dumped all the tobacco into the sea, it would be good for you and hard on the fish."—London News.

Women as Tilters.

The last census tells us that the proportion of women employed in manufactures is increasing more rapidly than men, that they are found in 295 of the 303 separate occupations, that they are not employed as soldiers, sailors, marines, street car drivers, firemen or as apprentices to roofers, boilermakers or brass workers. For such facts we can properly look to the census, but it is beyond the province of the census to show what are the sanitary conditions of their employment, their hours of labor, what the effect of their work is upon the morals of young girls, upon the health of women, upon their homes, upon their children, upon the wage earning power of their husbands, upon family desertion, upon the birth rate and marriage rate. This investigation should be a sociological study and will naturally be made by the department of labor.—Mary E. McDowell in Independent.

An Opium Cure.

A cure for the opium habit has at last been reported from China to our department of commerce and labor. It is found in a plant which grows wild in the vicinity of Lampur, and its use is said to destroy all appetite for the drug within a week. The leaves of the plant are exposed to the sun for a day after being gathered and are then chopped fine and roasted, after which a tea is made from them, and the specific is ready for use. In Lampur alone the applicants number 2,000 daily, and it is claimed that in the few short weeks since the plant was discovered over 14,000 persons have been cured of the opium smoking habit. So great is the demand for the plant that the natives are asking $10 a piece (133 1-3 pounds).—Springfield Union.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weakness and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle

As Our Fame Grows.

THE MORE we mingle with people on the outside, the more we are impressed with the fact that Sonoma has become better known in the past five years than ever before. There was a time when the town and valley were hopelessly confused with the county and we had to explain with care and exactness the geographical position of this location in order to make people understand that we really occupied a position of our own on the map. Now it is different and as we go away from home we hear reference to Sonoma's beauty everywhere. The writer recently overheard two conversations the subject of both being the beauties of Sonoma Valley. In a San Francisco ice cream parlor a lady and gentleman were discussing the attractions of this place as a summer mecca and on the Oakland street cars the beautiful drives about the valley were being recalled and dwelt on with much enthusiasm. It is good for the ears to hear such compliments and to feel that we are becoming known, and it should be an impetus for a lively pride in our surroundings. We should aim not only to make it an attractive rendezvous for tourists and vacation seekers but to up-build our community with the idea of getting permanent residents. Let work of improvement continue. We want good roads and attractive streets in order to hold our own with sister cities. We want good schools and prosperous societies and churches. In questions of public welfare let personalities be put aside. This is the first sign of a real transition from the small town to the city proper. Forget personalities and petty characteristics if a man is a good and useful citizen. He has his function to perform. Give him a chance.

The social life of a community or its aspects is what is weighed when one seeks a permanent abiding place. The pulling together of townspeople leads to prosperity. Bias and narrowness retards growth.

The Mule Objects.

HONK! HONK! says the mule
I have an ear for sound,
But that red devil has no voice
It's the very worst around.

Heel! Haw! that's music,
Moo! moo! not so worse
But the honk! honk! of that gas machine
To man and beast's a curse.

The whinnie of the good old horse,
The purring of the cat,
The quack! quack! of the ducks and drakes
Is not a match for that.

It's driven round just like a horse
And sometimes runs away,
But what I can't stand is that voice
That awful honk! honk! lay.

They talk about the nature fake
But Chas. G. D. and Long
Must both agree that this honk! honk!
Is a most unnatural song.

TAFT IS SAID to be fixing his political fences but it appears to us that the work must almost be complete. Complete is the word, for the Secretary outlined his plan many months ago and mapped out a great course which he has since pursued. He has been doing business with the American people and has made it plain to them that he has been putting himself in touch with many of the great problems which are about to confront us. He is a new, frank type of politician and his chances look very promising.

A Legend.

[NOTE: Each season the Russian River claims its victims.]

The placid waters of the Russian river,
Bedecked with vines and trees in leaf,
Upon thy sacrificial altars
Fair summer comes with renewed grief.

Comes with victims new to placate
Comes the Indians to obey;
Smiles, bewitches, snares, enraptures
With the beauty of each day.

Lo! they gather in that sunlight
Days as there one seldom sees;
Youths to frolic, little knowing
Of the legend of the breeze.

Yet as victims to that river
Fairer summer lures them there;
Indian's vengeance follows white man
For the trespass he did dare.

Cool, clear waters, rippling river,
Babble on invite the young
While we weep o'er red man's mystery
As we hear some requiem sung.

THE SACRED CODFISH.

Famous Emblem That Adorns the Massachusetts Statehouse.
A codfish carved in wood hangs on the white mahogany wall of the Massachusetts hall of representatives in the statehouse in Boston. Between two classic pillars it occupies a place of honor, directly opposite the desk of the presiding officer. This wooden fish is the renowned original sacred codfish of the Old Colony, and it has assisted at the deliberations of the lawmakers of Massachusetts for more than a century and a half, gathering sanctity year by year. It is a relic of the old building which preceded the present statehouse, and great is the dignity of this souvenir of colonial art and industry. The following account of its origin is given in a Boston paper:
"Captain John Welch of Boston was the creator and carver of the celebrated fish. He was a wood carver of renown for his time and in 1747 established his business in Dock square. He belonged to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company and afterward became its captain. He was called upon to contribute to the decoration of the colonial assembly hall, and as at that period codfish was the colony's main article of export Captain Welch conceived the idea of immortalizing the king fish of the Massachusetts waters. When completed the carving was finished off and colored so as to be a faithful smile of life and was hung on the wall of the assembly hall."

A Fool's Identity.
Some of the best known people pass unrecognized by those to whom they should be known. Harold Frederick sat one night at dinner next a man whose very silence and taciturnity caused him the more closely to observe him. Not a word was exchanged between the two. "Who was that hopeless idiot that I sat next to at dinner?" asked Frederick at the close of the meal. "That hopeless idiot was Cecil Rhodes," he was answered. It was the fact. The Colossus had been in one of the moods in which he would not talk, and Frederick, though he had seen his portrait a hundred times, had not recognized him.—St. James' Gazette.

INDEPENDENCE DAY IN BEAR FLAG TOWN.

Attracts a Great Throng of People from all Sections—The Parade and Literary Exercises.

Independence Day, 1907, will long be remembered in Sonoma on account of the large number of people attracted here on that day. They commenced to come early. The summer resorts of Agua Caliente, Glen Ellen and El Verano poured into town nearly a thousand people, while San Francisco, Santa Rosa, Sebastopol, Petaluma, Napa, and other near by towns were represented by another thousand, and by eleven o'clock, when the parade started the four streets facing the plaza were thronged with visitors.

The parade was formed at the depot of the California Northwestern Pacific Railroad and was preceded by Park's Brass Band of Santa Rosa. Then came in their order Sonoma Parlor of Native Sons, city officials in carriages, float bearing 49 little girls dressed in red, white and blue, representing the American Union, Sonoma Valley Woman's Club, carry-alls from many of the summer resorts of the valley, gaily decorated automobiles, and citizens in carriages, wagons and other vehicles. Taking it altogether the parade was a success. Immediately after the parade the Bear Flag Monument erected by the Woman's Club was unveiled after which the following program of exercises took place in Union Hall: Music, band; remarks, Robert A. Poppe, president of the day; invocation, Rev. C. C. Cragin; music, band; reading, "Declaration of Independence," R. H. Platt; song, "Star Spangled Banner," Miss Hazel Gies; oration, Judge Emmett Seawell; music, "America," by the audience.

KICKED TO DEATH
BY VICIOUS HORSE.

The Sad Passing of Ben Cook, a Pioneer Resident of Sonoma.

Ben Cook, a pioneer resident of Sonoma, who came here when he was a boy and known from one end of the valley to the other, died on Thursday night between 8 and 9 o'clock from injuries received in being kicked by a horse.

The animal, a stallion belonging to A. White, of Kenwood, is being temporarily kept at the Union Stables. On Wednesday afternoon while Cook was busying himself about the stables he approached the stallion, who suddenly lashed out its hind feet striking the unfortunate man with terrific force square in the pit of the stomach. He was knocked unconscious and kindly hands went to poor old Ben's rescue, picked him up and gently carried him to the home of his sister, Mrs. Mollie Pohley.

Dr. Thomson was summoned and did all that medical skill could devise to save the injured man's life but without avail and after suffering for thirty hours he passed away without a struggle.

Ben Cook belonged to one of the pioneer families of the Sonoma Valley, who came here in the early fifties. Every foot of the soil of this section was familiar to him, as in his early manhood days he was an ardent deer hunter and fisherman.

For twenty years past he had been employed in the Union Stables, and as age commenced to weaken his once wonderful vitality he often spoke of throwing up his work in the stables, complaining that he was about worn out. He delayed too long, however, and the rest he was looking forward to, when it did come was sudden and final.

The deceased leaves a sister, Mrs. Mollie Pohley, to whom he was fondly attached, to mourn his sad taking off.

The deceased was a native of Missouri, and aged 65 years and 10 months. The funeral takes place to-morrow (Sunday) at 1 p. m. from his late residence on Spain street.

Saloon for Sears' Point.

A petition has been filed by Peter Cornelius with the Board of Supervisors asking that he be granted a liquor license to conduct a saloon at Sears' Point. The petition is numerous signed by nearby residents, while no remonstrance has been filed. Sears' Point, since the opening of the Foster quarries there, is becoming quite populous. Cornelius' petition will be acted upon by the Supervisors next week when it is presumed the thirsty ones down that way will get their liquid refreshment emporium.

New Board of Education Organizes.

The Sonoma County Board of Education organized Tuesday by electing Leander Good, principal of the Burbank school of Santa Rosa, president. The personnel of the Board is as follows: Leander Good, O. F. C. Nolan, Professor Newell, O. F. Stanton and County Superintendent DeWitt Montgomery.

A Valuable Suggestion to Prevent House Fires.

This is the season of the year when disastrous fires visit many of the interior towns, and as "an ounce of preventive is worth a pound of cure," the following from a Kansas City paper is worthy of consideration:

"Every home should have, in convenient places, some means of fighting fire. Probably the most convenient is hand grenades—not the kind that you buy, but the home made ones at the cost of a few cents and a little trouble. Take twenty parts of unslacked lime, five parts of common salt and dissolve in seventy-five parts of water. When thoroughly dissolved pour into thin bottles and cork tight. If a fire occurs, break one or two bottles into it and the mixture will smother it out, even when it has gained considerable proportions."

Daily Call and INDEX-TRIBUNE $9 per year.

Drove Over With His Mulesmobile.

Jasper Patrick, Supervisor of West Napa No. One, drove over here from Napa and spent the Fourth with his Sonoma friends. Mr. Patrick made the trip behind his span of campaign mules with which the people of Napa county are familiar. During his brief sojourn here Mr. Patrick met a large number of friends who were glad to see him.

One hundred and sixty-one of these were successful, while two hundred and three pupils were promoted from the seventh to the eighth grade.

Those who passed a successful examination for promotion to the High School in this valley were as follows:

Dunbar District—Hattie Helmick.
El Verano—Archibald Revie.
Glen Ellen—Beatrice Musante, James Ferguson and Gertrude Ferguson.

Thousands of Visitors.

An immense throng of people visited the various resorts and bathing establishments in this valley last Sunday. Since the publication of "Vacation" by the California Northwestern Railway Company a few years ago, the beauties and advantages of the Sonoma Valley have become widely known and many thousands of people have been attracted hither by the little booklet, which idea was put in practice by the late R. X. Ryan, the general passenger agent of the California Northwestern, but it may be interesting to note that the idea and suggestion came originally from Mr. G. W. Reed, the local agent of the company at this place, who had not been here long before he discovered that this valley was destined to become a great summer attraction if properly advertised.

BURNED TO DEATH ON BROADWAY.

CLOTHES CATCHES FIRE WHILE DRIVING DOWN THAT STREET.

Jumps From Rig and Before Father and Husband Reach Her Is Enveloped in a Mass of Flames.

Mrs. Henry, daughter of John Cabral, aged 22 years, and who was married a few months ago, lies at Green's private sanitarium on Broadway and cannot survive a terrible accident which befell her on July 4th shortly after the noon hour. The unfortunate woman, who resides on the Mein's place, Schellville, accompanied by her husband and father, drove into town to witness the parade on the morning of the Fourth. Between 12 and 1 o'clock the husband, wife and father started down Broadway in a cart on their way home. When opposite the Volquardsen home, Mrs. Henry discovered that her clothes were on fire and in her terror threw herself out of the cart, and before the horse could be stopped and husband and father reach her side she lay in the middle of the road enveloped in a mass of flames, from her burning skirts. Both made heroic efforts to smother the flames and were in turn badly burned, but without success and in a short time the victim lay in the road a mass of seared and quivering flesh with every stitch of clothing burned from her body. Parties who witnessed the burning from a distance thought the poor woman was a bundle of clothing on fire and gave the incident no further attention.

Husband and father, although badly burned about the hands and arms in their heroic but fruitless effort to smother the flames, tenderly carried the suffering woman into the Volquardsen home, where everything possible was done to allay her agonizing pain until the arrival of Dr. Thomson.

Later on Mrs. Henry was taken to Green's sanitarium. Her burns are fatal and it is only a question of hours when she will succumb to them.

THE DRIVING CLUB'S RACES THURSDAY.

Bring Out Big Throng of People—The Winners and the Time Made.

The races held here on the Fourth, under the auspices of the Sonoma Valley Driving Club, were good. They attracted a large throng of people, the fair sex in light, fluffy and airy gowns being very much in evidence.

The first event on the racing card was a special trotting race, mile heats, best 2 out of 3. There were four entries in this race as follows: Fanny Parnell, entered by Marcy; Schellville Queen, Millerick, owner; Sweetheart, T. Kiser, owner and Dollie, entered by Jason. The Queen won in two straight heats. Time—2.52 and 2.48.

The second race was for trotters in the 3-minute class. Four horses were entered in this event as follows: Honduras, Waldstein McKinny, Ray McKinny and Babe. These horses were owned in their order by Knuckles, Dr. Button, F. Weaver and Jack McDonell. Babe beat the bunch in two straight heats. Time—2.31 and 2.42.

In the mile road race, best two out of three, which followed, five horses passed under the wire as follows: Joe Keechler's "Tule Boy," Jim Wall's "Pat," T. Matthews "Lynall," Knuckles' "Elderwood and F. Weaver's "Lafayette." Tule Boy, with Joe Ryan behind him, won easily in two straight heats in 2.33 and 2.46.

There were three entries in the 2.30 trotting and pacing event, mile heats, best two out of three, which was the next race on the card. Walter Nolan's "Lady Seymour" won this race in two straight heats. Time—2.32 and 2.25. In this race Docus D., owned by Dr. Button, gave the Lady a lively chase. In the first half of the first heat the animals passed under the wire nose and nose. Then the tire of Docus' sulky collapsed and he lost the race and in consequence behaved in a most scandalous manner. S. Norris' Ena S. came in second. In the heat that followed Docus was well up with Lady Seymour when she passed under the wire for the last time.

In the free-for-all mile trot Joe Ryan's Myrtle won both heats, beating D. McGovern's Dan Frazer. Time—2.22 and 2.25.

The half-mile dash was won by Coney Island in 52 seconds out of a bunch of six ponies.

WOMAN'S CLUB BALL
A BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Union Hall Presented a Stimulated Appearance With Handsomely Gowned Women and Bright Electric Lights.

The ball given at Koenig's Union Hall on Fourth of July night was a most successful and brilliant social function. Over one hundred couple participated in the light fantastic and in the midst of the dance the large and brilliantly lighted hall and handsome women presented a picture that reminded one of a scene in fairyland.

The floor was under the management of Messrs. Will Clewe and H. F. Bates. The music was furnished by S. L. Park's Orchestra of Santa Rosa, which is considered the par excellence of dance music north of the metropolis.

Financially and socially the ball was a great success as was the supper furnished by mine host Frank Koenig, whose reputation as a caterer is widely known and who needs no praise in these columns.

The Sonoma Valley Woman's Club did itself proud on this occasion and added one more laurel to its many social functions in the past.

Initiation and Banquet.

Seven candidates were initiated by Sonoma Parlor No. 111, N. S. G. W., last Monday evening. After the initiation ceremonies and the business of the Parlor had been transacted the members sat down to a banquet which they had prepared in the library room of the Odd Fellows' building. Grand Secretary Turner, of San Francisco, who happened to be in town, was present and was the guest of honor. About thirty Natives were present and entered into the spirit of the occasion.

Congregational Church.

Next Sunday is the last Sunday before the pastor's vacation. In the morning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, reception of members and a short sermon upon "Jesus on the Cross." In the evening the topic will be "Man's Judgments and God's Judgments," and Miss Scholtz will favor the congregation with a violin solo.

Skelton Glaister Assistant Postmaster.

Skelton Glaister has been appointed his assistant by Postmaster Cheney, vice Mrs. Clara Johnson, resigned. Mr. Glaister entered upon his duties Monday. The appointment is a good one as Mr. Cheney's assistant is a reliable competent and deserving young man.

Returned from the Southland.

Fred Batto, who returned from Los Angeles on Friday of last week, where he was in attendance at the week's session of the Grand Lodge of the Druids. Mr. Batto, while admitting that the cities of the southland were very pretty, prefers Sonoma county, which is natural, not artificial, and where one can raise most everything that grows on a farm without irrigation.

Bad Blood

The Doctor Away from Home When Most Needed.

People are often very much disappointed to find that their family physician is away from home when they most need his services. Diseases like cramp, colic and cholera morbus require prompt treatment, and have in many instances proven fatal before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. The right way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No physician can prescribe a better medicine for these diseases. By having it in the house you escape much pain and suffering and all risk. Buy it now; it may save life.

A WHISTLER STORY.

The Eagle That Was Made to Pose as a Fighting Cock.

Apologies of something Whistler once told a cockfight story so vividly that only a man with a sailor's instinct could tell it as well, mimic it so keenly and enjoy it so thoroughly. It was a story of a strange species of the American cock, pictured to the smallest detail so beautifully that one forgot that it was a story.

Some American sailors were at a cockfight in a seaport town in England when one of them remarked to the owner of the champion:

"We have got an American cock on board that can whip any bird here."

"Go fetch 'im on," said the champion.

"Chick 'im in and see. If 'e licks one bird we 'ave plenty more to throw in that can lick any blawsted Hamerican bird you can fetch 'ere."

"All right. We'll bring one," said the sailors. When they got aboard they rigged up an American eagle. After their own manner, they painted, lained, spiced and reeled fore and aft, transforming the eagle to a cock. When ready they went ashore to pit their new American gamecock against all England.

At the pit the sailors chuckled in their cock, which looked around for other surprises as he backed close to the wall.

"Now, bring on your birds!" yelled the sailors. A strutting cock was thrown into the pit and was another surprise to the poor dismantled eagle. He backed up closer and closer to the wall, wondering what would happen next. The cock walked three times majestically around the circle, cuffling at his strange opponent, the eagle pitifully abashed and bedrabbled, crouching lower and lower and looking around and above him for an explanation of what it all meant, while the crowd were yelling madly for the English fighter. The eagle made himself smaller and smaller, but at last, finding that he could get back no further and thinking that something was expected of him, and, as the cock dashed at him again, stretched out his long claws and took his opponent by the neck.

Here Whistler ended with an imitation by motions of what the eagle did. He stretched out his arm, shaped his hand like a claw, which by this time looked like a real one, drew it to his mouth and with one bite pulled off the head as he thought an eagle might do it. Then he looked blandly about the room, as the eagle had done, at the astonished crowd and said, "Now bring on your other birds."—Otto Bacher in Century.

TOWNS WITH TROUBLES.

London's trouble is her fog. Tokyo's trouble is earthquakes. In her worst 200,000 residents were killed. The mistral is the trouble of Marseilles, an east wind that increases the city's death rate 50 per cent.

Calcutta's trouble is cholera, and the bubonic plague is the trouble of Bombay. Each city pays for her trouble an annual tribute of 9,000 souls.

Bagdad's trouble is the "Bagdad button," a sore that attacks practically every resident and visitor, leaving a button shaped permanent scar.

Madrid's trouble is the solano, a summer wind from the southeast. It is exceedingly hot and is accompanied by blinding, choking clouds of dust, so that notwithstanding a temperature of 105 or 110 degrees all windows must be closed.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Science of Chemistry. Chemistry did not become a science—in other words, chemistry proper did not exist—until the seventeenth century, and it was as late as the middle of the eighteenth century before it began to amount to much. The old alchemy undoubtedly contained the germs, or at least the possibilities, of the present day chemistry, but beyond this the relationship between the modern science and the ancient delusion is slight indeed. Still, it cannot be denied that it was in the foolish search for the "Philosopher's Stone" and the "Elixir of Life" that men first hit upon the discoveries which were destined to develop into the great science of today.—New York American.

The Sarcastic Cabby. The London bobby is notorious for overgrown feet and hands. Likewise the London cabby is generally accredited with never being at a loss for a reply. One day a bobby lifted up his hand majestically to halt a cabby, but the latter crowded his horse ahead.

"Didn't you see me raise my 'and'?" demanded the bobby.

"I did see the sky darken a moment, but my horse was shyn' at your feet," retorted the cabby as he whipped up and went on.—London Graphic.

The Danes and the Raven. Perhaps the Danes selected the raven for their standard out of feelings of gratitude, for before the invention of the mariner's compass they must have found him extremely useful. The only method of determining whether land was near was to let loose a raven. If the bird saw land he sailed away for ever; if he did not, he returned to the ship.—London Chronicle.

Equally Culpable. "I can say for myself that I never have been mean enough to get another woman's cook away from her."

"Neither have I, but I must confess that once or twice I have tried to work our cook off on some of my neighbors."

Shut Him Off. "What are you taking for your cold?"

"Nothing."

"Nothing? But, my dear fellow—"

"Nothing, I say, not even advice. Fine day, isn't it?"—Illustrated Atlas.

Wasn't Sure. "Remember," said the lawyer, "you have undertaken to tell nothing but the truth."

"I'll do my best," answered the expert witness, "but I won't know how far I have succeeded until I'm through with the cross examination."—Washington Star.

The Doubt. Borrowers—By the way, Knox, did I leave my umbrella at your office yesterday? Knox—You left an umbrella, but I don't know whether it was yours or not.—Exchange.

Thunder in September indicates a good crop of grain and fruit for the next year.—Old Proverb.

Galliano's Quinine Hair Tonic.

Joe Galliano, at First Street East, Pinelli building, has introduced into Sonoma a hair tonic, called Quinine Tonic, which is a wonderful remedy for the prevention of baldness. Mr. Galliano has had many years experience under a first-class physician in Europe. A great number of cases of baldness are caused by indigestion, and not as is presumed by a disease of the scalp. It is not claimed that Quinine Tonic will grow hair on a bald head, as a number of fake tonics are advertised to do, but it is claimed and guaranteed that Quinine Tonic will stop the hair from falling out, and if used twice a week will clear the head from dandruff which will not return as long as the Tonic is used. Quinine Tonic is composed of the five following articles: Pure Alcohol, Quinine, Sulphur, Glycerine and Tumeric. If the Tonic is used and not found as represented, Galliano will refund the money. The Quinine Tonic will also save the trouble of shampooing the hair. This Tonic is for sale at both drug stores in Sonoma.

ANCIENT ARMIES.

Ten thousand horse and 100,000 foot fell on the fatal field of Issus. The army of Artaxerxes before the battle of Cunaxa amounted to about 1,200,000.

An army of Cambyses, 50,000 strong, was buried in the desert sands of Africa by a south wind.

A short time after the taking of Babylon the forces of Cyrus consisted of 600,000 foot, 120,000 horse and 2,000 chariots armed with scythes.

Ninus, the Assyrian king, about 220 B. C., led against the Bactrians his army, consisting of 1,700,000-foot soldiers, 200,000 horse and 10,000 chariots armed with scythes.

When Xerxes arrived at Thermopylae his land and sea forces amounted to 2,641,610, exclusive of servants, eunuchs, women, sutlers, etc., in all numbering 5,283,220. So say Herodotus, Plutarch and Isocrates.

Why Paper Cuts.

Have you ever cut yourself with a piece of paper? The edge of a piece of glazed paper looks much like that of a knife under the microscope. Of course the little teeth have not the strength of steel, but if the edge of the paper is drawn swiftly over the finger without much pressure that peculiar property of matter called inertia comes into play, and the tender flesh will cut the flesh before they are broken. The same property it is which allows a candle to be shot through a one inch plank or permits a bullet to pass through a pane of glass without shattering it, leaving only a clean, round hole.—C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas.

Lincoln and a Suit of Clothes. On one occasion a judge was ill and, being unable to sit in a case, delegated Lincoln to hear the matter. The account of the guardian was in question. He had paid $28 for a suit of clothes for his ward and justified it on the ground that it was a necessary expense. Lincoln held against the guardian on the ground that it was an extravagant expenditure and in passing on the case stated that he had never in his life owned a suit of clothes that cost $28.

A Happy Mother

will see that her baby is properly cared for to do this a good purgative is necessary. Many babies suffer from worms and their mothers don't know it—if your baby is feverish and don't sleep at nights, it is troubled with worms. White's Cream Vermifuge will clean out these worms in a mild pleasant way. One trial always gives it a trial. Price 25 cents. Sold by Simmons' Pharmacy.

The Lyre Bird.

The largest and handsomest of all the song birds is the lyre bird. Its home is in Australia, where its song is heard morning and evening. It is heard oftener in winter than in summer. The chief beauty of the lyre bird is in the plumage of its tail, which is elegant and in the form of an ancient lyre. While singing the lyre bird spreads its tail over its head like a peacock and droops its wings to the ground. This bird is not only a fine songster, but can imitate the songs of all birds. One living near a wood sawyer's hut even imitated the sound of the filing of saws. The crowing of cocks, the cackling of hens, the barking of dogs and the howling of cats are within its range. Its own song is also different from that of other birds, being a louder and fuller tone.

Leprosy. Leprosy is an exclusively human disease. It is not inoculable to animals. It is never of spontaneous origin, but is invariably derived from the lesions or secretions of a person similarly diseased. Its development in a country previously exempt from the disease may always be traced to its importation in the person of a leper from an infected center. We know nothing definitely of the mode of infection or the channels of entrance through which the bacillus gains access to the organism—whether by direct contact, by inhalation or imbibition of the germs or by other intermediate means. Observation proves conclusively that every leper is a possible source of danger to all with whom he may come into intimate and prolonged contact.

Cold Comfort. Miss Gladys—You've no objection to my going skating in the park, but you draw the line at skating rinks. What's the difference?

Prudent Mamma—Well, my dear, there's an ice distinction between the two, which is perfectly clear to me.—Chicago Tribune.

Ancient Rome

is now merely a memory of the past. Ballard's Snow Liniment is the family liniment of the twentieth century. A positive cure for Rheumatism, Burns, Cuts, Sprains, Neuralgia, etc. Mr. C. H. Runyon, Stanberry, Mo., writes: "I have used Snow Liniment for Rheumatism and all pain. I can't say enough in its praise." Sold by Simmons' Pharmacy.
